

Team Profiling Tools: DISC and Motivators

Have a more harmonious and tolerant team

'DISC' is the universal language of observable behaviour. It looks at how we deal with problems, people, pace and procedures. Our personalised profiling allows practices to uncover behavioural and communication styles within the team helping to promote tolerance and awareness. It also allows you to select and manage your team to maximise performance.

Would you like to understand the language and science of motivating your team?

Any type of change begins with the right motivation. The Workplace Motivators is a powerful profiling tool that allows you to understand what motivates and drives your team into action. Whether you are working with teams, managers, individuals or customers, by learning the Workplace Motivators language you will empower people to motivate, understand and relate to others more effectively.

"As a manager I believe this is a valuable team building exercise. It's fun, it's interesting and is no doubt a valuable tool to help team members understand each other! If we can all become more self-aware and understand what motivates both ourselves and others then surely the workplace and therefore the practice can only benefit!"
